Your Future Maintains Our Dominance

...as long as you continue your life as you have for the past 20-odd years. We need strong, able bodies willing to give up all pleasure for our needs. We need you if you are willing to be half-satisfied with meaningless activity, if you are willing to accept our leadership and authority, if you are willing to conform your thoughts to our line. This system has worked hard to produce you as you are today. You've already shown us your patience – most of you spent your first 18 years in a nuclear family obeying the rules of your parents and teachers and observing societal norms. In the University you've experienced more of the same daily humiliations (only now you pay for it), tempered by the illusion of more choice, and an increasing workload year after year (so that you're too busy to realize what you're losing). And you've shown remarkable restraint from anger over the petty problems of everyday life -- finding a place to live, standing in long lines at the grocery, at registration for school, at finding a job (boring and useless as it was). And now, for excelling in obedience, we want to reward you. We'll offer you all kinds of gimmicks – we'll pay off your student loans, we'll give you professional status (even though we'll make all the decisions for you), anything we can think of to snatch you in to our fold. Is There Life
After a Job?

After all, were only asking for your life.
